the 1990s, the number of people in the UK with a mental health problem has increased by 50% (Mental Health Act 1983, 1990). The prevalence of mental health problems in the UK is estimated to be 10% (Mental Health Act 1983, 1990).

There is a growing awareness of the need to address the needs of people with mental health problems in the community. The Mental Health Act 1983 (1990) provides a framework for the care of people with mental health problems in the community. The Act sets out the principles of care and the responsibilities of the various agencies involved in the care of people with mental health problems. The Act also provides for the appointment of a Mental Health Review Tribunal to oversee the care of people with mental health problems in the community.

The Mental Health Act 1983 (1990) is a landmark piece of legislation in the history of mental health care in the UK. It has led to a number of changes in the way that people with mental health problems are cared for in the community. These changes include the introduction of community care orders, the appointment of Mental Health Review Tribunals, and the establishment of the Mental Health Act Commission. These changes have led to a more integrated and coordinated approach to the care of people with mental health problems in the community.

the 1990s, the number of people in the UK who are aged 65 and over has increased from 10.5 million to 12.5 million, and the number of people aged 75 and over has increased from 4.5 million to 6.5 million (Office of National Statistics 2000). The number of people aged 65 and over is projected to increase to 15.5 million by 2020, and the number of people aged 75 and over to 8.5 million (Office of National Statistics 2000). The increase in the number of people aged 65 and over is expected to be due to a combination of factors, including a decline in the birth rate, a decline in the death rate, and a decline in the rate of emigration.

The increase in the number of people aged 65 and over is expected to have a significant impact on the UK's health and social care system. The number of people aged 65 and over who are in need of health and social care services is expected to increase from 1.5 million in 1990 to 2.5 million in 2020 (Office of National Statistics 2000). This increase is expected to be due to a combination of factors, including a decline in the birth rate, a decline in the death rate, and a decline in the rate of emigration. There's a patch of old snow in a corner
That I should have guessed
Was a blow-away paper the rain
Had brought to rest.

It is speckled with grime as if Small print overspread it,
The news of a day I've forgotten—
If I ever read it.

Robert Frost

A black and white photograph of a snowy landscape. The foreground is a vast, smooth expanse of snow, possibly a field or a frozen body of water. In the background, a dense forest of evergreen trees stands against a light sky. The trees are dark and silhouetted against the bright snow and sky. The overall mood is quiet and serene.

Time does not stop for those of us
who would wish to linger,
but speeds past
in a train through a small town—
and we sit and watch out the window
as the scene
disappears from our sight,
and we do not sigh,
until one day
in a newspaper
we read a name
and a dim memory strains to be recalled.

I often see flowers from a passing car
That are gone before I can tell what they are.

I want to get out of the train and go back
To see what they were beside the track.

Was something brushed across my mind
That no one on earth will ever find?

Heaven gives its glimpses to those
Not in position to look too close.

Now close the windows and hush all the fields;
If the trees must, let them silently toss;
No bird is singing now, and if there is,
Be it my loss.

It will be long ere the marshes resume,
It will be long ere the earliest bird;
So close the windows and not hear the wind,
But see all wind-stirred.

As editors of the 1977 CHAOS, we would like to thank all the people who helped us put this book out. Our thanks to Mr. Roberts and Mr. Leturgez who were always very understanding and helpful; Miss Plunkett who kept us going when we'd slow down; Mr. Erickson and Mr. Ownbey for all the rush orders and patience; all the coaches and teams for being as helpful as possible; Mrs. Brandenburg and Mrs. Christensen for smiles and help when we were down and needing help; and our special thanks to all those who helped whom we do not have room to mention by name.

We would also like to extend our sincere apologies to any person who was omitted from this yearbook by our mistake.

Thank you,

Ann Pullin
